For the past six years, NPAP and The New School for General Studies and The New School for Social Research have collaborated on twenty-five scientific meetings. This all day conference culminates this fruitful collaboration, as the Department of Social Science and Department of Psychology support the explication of the legacies of the founder of the National Psychological Association for Psychoanalysis. At one time, during the heyday of psychoanalysis in America in the 1950's and early 1960's, Theodor Reik, was the biggest selling author on Psychoanalysis in America. And yet, to the general public his influence has apparently waned. However, his uncredited influence pervades the current controversies extant in the psychoanalytic communities of the 21st century. This conference will explore the themes of Reik's current, yet uncredited influence.
